

Whiteley Changeable

Wm. Whiteley Limited has long been a pioneer in the design and manufacture of sign holders that allow content or messages to be updated easily and inexpensively using standard office equipment. This attribute – the ability to keep sign content current – is the most important criteria in keeping a wayfinding sign system functional over time.

The sign holders displayed here offer various levels of access and changeability. Some messages need to be changed often and others rarely; some applications, such as public safety require an extremely high level of control and security while other situations require access to be freely open to all. Depending on the sign type selected, signs can be permanent or installed to meet short term or emergency situations. Our wayfinding planning team is available to help with selecting the appropriate sign type or types for your project.
